New Delhi | Monday, Oct 3 2016 IST

India-US Science and Technology Joint Commission has agreed to add new areas of S&T collaboration like agriculture science, ocean wave modelling and advance manufacturing. Techno-entrepreneurship and innovation will be the centre piece of future collaboration, Ministry of Science & Technology said in a statement today. India has expressed readiness to enhance cooperation on Arctic science and research. This was conveyed to the first ever White House Arctic Science Ministerial meeting in Washington DC where Minister of Science and Technology and Earth Sciences Harsh Vardhan signed a statement for the purpose.

The Minister emphasised the significance of environment and climate change in the Arctic region and its impact on Indian Monsoon.

During his visit from last Wednesday to Sunday, Dr Vardhan co-chaired bilateral India-US S&T Joint Commission meeting along with Dr John Holdren, Assistant to the President for Science & Technology and reviewed the progress under five Joint Working Groups for S&T cooperation between two countries.

Dr Vardhan visited the Lockheed Martin Global Vision Center (GVC), a centre for research and innovation, and had meetings with Mr Rodney A Makoske, Senior Vice President and exchanged letters to extend the India Innovation Growth Program (IIGP) involving DST, Lockheed Martin and TATA Trusts.

The IIGP 2.0 will support "Make in India" and "Start-up India" initiatives with focus on social and technological innovations.

Dr Vardhan also attended a reception event at Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History, where he met the S&T leadership of over 20 countries.

On the sidelines of Arctic Science Ministerial meeting, he had a meeting with Mr Jo Johnson, Minister of State for Universities, Science, Research and Innovation, United Kingdom and discussed the bilateral programmes.

He also had a meeting with Mr Roe Isaksen, Norwegian Minister for Education and Research and discussed the collaborations in areas of Arctic and Antarctic science and climate change.
